These include negotiations with the National Government, starting with the first round held in Port Moresby on the 18th of May 1995 and ending with the fourth round on the 3rd of August 1995. Issues covered in these rounds included pardon and amnesty; an arms amnesty; a commitment to a "new projects" approach for all new developmental projects in the province; a proposed policy on the future of armed youth, their disarmament and rehabilitation; and the future political status of Bougainville. All these are contained in various documents, principally the "Waigani Communique" and the "Areas of Common Understanding Reached between the Prime Minister Sir Julius Chan and BTG Premier Mr. Theodore Miriung on the Occasion of their Fourth Negotiation Session at the Mirigini State House on Thursday 3rd August 1995" (Areas of Common Understanding).

Apart from running the affairs of the Bougainville Transitional Government, it will be responsible for negotiating a political settlement with the National Government. It is not intended that this body become the ultimate form of government for the province. Under the "Charter of Migraine for a New Bougainville" signed on the 25 November 1994, Bougainville leaders of the National Government agreed that after a political settlement is reached between the National Government and the Bougainville Transitional Government the Assembly of the Transitional Government shall act as a Constituent Assembly to review the Constitution of the North Solomon Provincial Government and enact a new Constitution. The Bougainville Transitional Government will be committed to this task. The leaders also committed themselves to a "new spirit" and to "a new deal for a new Bougainville". The Bougainville Transitional Government and the National Government will be committed to working out a new deal for Bougainville which, the leaders of both governments agree, must address the basic grievances of the people and of there province, politically, socially and economically. Security Guarantees	Page 3, PART II - OBJECTIVES OF THE BOUGAINVILLE TRANSITIONAL GOVERNMENT 2.10 Thirdly, and this is related to the second, it was clearly spelled out in the Mirigini Charter that negotiations and dialogue are the central means by which BTG will have to achieve its objectives. For this reason, BTG believes that it ought to be seen as a peacemaker and a peace-builder, working primarily in the management of the conflict through peace-building efforts and confidence-building foundations. It ought not to be seen, strictly speaking, as an enforcer of the law. That is not to say that it cannot assert its authority as a civilian legal authority on the ground. On the contrary it is bound to do so. It will continued to condemn violence and killings in any form and do everything within its power and influence to prevent these. But it believes that its success as a transitional arrangement or as a vehicle for bringing the people to a political settlement requires that it be firm but fair. PART IV - BTG's PEACE STRATEGY, Guiding Principles 4.1 BTG believes that the foundation for a solution depends on a number of fundamental principles: <ul style="list-style-type: none">i) an acceptance of the fact that there cannot be a pure military solution to the conflict;ii) an acceptance of the fact that peace cannot be forced upon a group who wants to go on fighting; PART IV - BTG's PEACE STRATEGY, Guiding Principles 4.2 These principles, however, need qualifying, BIG believes that: <ul style="list-style-type: none">i) military presence had been necessary to protect lives and property, and this may continue to be so as long as there is a threat posed to the lives of the people;

2.6 In addition to the specific aims of BTG as are provided under these instruments, BTG has an obligation as a government to respect, if not follow, the policies of the National Government, both past and present, in so far as those policies relate to its efforts for peace on Bougainville. In this regard all past agreements or understandings between the National Government and Bougainville leaders are binding on BTG, to the extent they are relevant. These agreements have provided the context from which a number of fundamental policies have emerged, and from which various stands (not always similar) have been taken by leaders of Bougainville and leaders at the national level auto what the national policy was, or ought to have been, in relation to Bougainville.
