| Rationale | The signatories were local politicians and/or armed group representatives, who did not take part in the broader negotiations nor did they engage in negotiating more than this one document. |
| Is there a documented link to a national peace process? | No |
| Link to national process: articulated rationale | While there were negotiations at various times in the conflict, the meetings that produced this document were primarily attended by local political and military actors. This document is exceptional in the Croatian conflict as it was negotiated by a group of Serb representatives who broke away from the main actors of Republika Srpska Krajina based in Knin. At least some of the Serb signatories were later arrested by RSK, charged with treason, for which they were threatened with a death sentence. There appears to have been pressure on the Croatian side to sign the agreement, coming from representatives of the government and president Tudjman, though the signatories are local only. |
